

NEW JERSEY STATE INDUSTRIAL SAFETY COMMITTEE
PROFESSIONAL DEVELOPMENT CONFERENCE

&

Rutgers School of Public Health
Office of Public Health Practice
Centers for Education and Training

Presents

Temporary Worker Seminar
Overcoming Hazards Unique to Temporary Workers

Staffing agencies and host employers are jointly responsible for maintaining a safe environment for temporary workers. The key is effective communication between the agency and the host to ensure that the necessary protections are provided. Most importantly, the host employers must treat temporary workers like any other workers in terms of safety & health protection. Course highlights include joint responsibilities of employers and staffing agencies, training requirements, and developing systems for maintaining safety & health.

Topics covered:

- Worker training requirements
- Hazard Communication
- OSHA Recordkeeping Requirements
- Job Hazard Analysis – checklists / identifying hazards
- Effective Communication Between the Agency, the Host Employers, and the Workers
- New – Construction Confined Space Standards

Intended Audience: Staffing agency personnel, Human Resources/hiring employers, workers with safety & health responsibilities, and temporary worker representatives.

Instructor:

- Michael Presutti

Register for this FREE seminar through the NJSISC website.
<http://www.njsisc.org/eventstraining.html>

Date: March 14, 2016
Time: 8:30am to 3:00pm
Location: Rutgers School of Public Health
683 Hoes Lane West
Piscataway, NJ 08854